sorry

Professor Daniels' secretary was nice to Marsha. When Marsha told her that she was there to interview Professor Daniels, his secretary told her that she was terribly sorry that Professor Daniels wasn't there. He had changed his plans at the last minute and gone to the airport to catch the 3:00 flight to Chicago. She also said that she hoped that this mix-up didn't inconvenience Marsha too much. The secretary then promised to leave a note on Professor Daniels' desk to let him know that Marsha had been there. At the end of their conversation, the secretary told Marsha that it was nice talking with her.
